In South Africa we are blessed to start each year with the warmth of summer. It's a pleasure to present to you a small selection of works on offer at our gallery which exemplify the feeling of summer. Marion Townsend beautifully captures the feel of small town South Africa in her acrylic work while Sandi Beukes uses bold colours in her delightful "French" scenes. Charmaine Eastment creates vast, textured skies over her rural landscapes and captures summer in her seascapes and florals. And finally we have new work by Roy Stokes featuring highly detailed scenes of Africa's wildlife.

Please take the time to check out our website www.butterflies.co.za/gallery.htm (or artsales.co.za) as we have many more other talented artists exhibiting as well as more work by the artists featured in this catalogue.

We wish you a blessed and inspiring 2012!

Roy Stokes

A detailed oil painting of an elephant family in a savanna landscape. In the foreground, a large elephant stands partially submerged in a blue watering hole, its trunk reaching down. To the right, a herd of three elephants, including a small calf, is gathered at the edge of the water. The background features a line of green trees and several tall, leafless, bleached trees. In the distance, a range of blue mountains is visible under a pale sky. The overall style is realistic with fine brushwork and a rich color palette.
